LETTER or JNO, KANDOLPH OF ROANOKE. Written to J. R. Bryan, esq., 23 years ago, which "imparts lessons of wisdom which can never cease to apply to the youth of LONDON, Dec. 28, 1830. My Dear Godson: Although I have so lately written to your better half, and at such tedious length, too, yet I cannot refrain from the attempt to engraft an old head upon young shoulders, notwithstanding my belief that no man was ever the wiser for another's experience. There are too many who are unable to profit by their own; witness the gamester, and the spendthrift, not to men-tion another class of victims of licentious propensities matured into habitual indulgence. Each of those wretched votaries of his darling vice is more sensible of the ruinous effects of his folly than any preacher who exhorts him against the consequences. He that wears the chain best knows how and where the fetter galls. They that declaim against the fixed and rooted ill-habits of their neighbor, under the expectation of reforming him, only show that they themselves are coxcombs. Rather sententious and flat this, you will say, and you will tell the truth.

Having established yourself in Gloucester, let me remind you "not to put off until tomorrow what may be done to-day;" and "a fortiori," not to leave till next year what could be done this, (1831.) Plant all sorts of trees. Man and boy I knew John Lewis for some forty years or so, although I never was in his house. It is probable he may have saved you the trouble of rearing orchards.— Chased, and Plain Oval Brace-But, be that as it may, fail not to have a good apple orchard, especially, and banish ardent spirits as a beverage from your table. I have serious fears on this head for a certain young beginning, you are obliged to resort to spirits, let your wife make the punch or toddy by measure, of a certain strength, never to be increased, according to the good old Virginia

2. Have no dealings that can possibly be avoided with your neighbors. The disregard of this caution will certainly lead to squabbles and strife.

3. Take no receipts on loose pieces of paper. Carry a receipt book in your poc-ket, and take all receipts in it, if you are afraid of losing it, keep it in your desk .-Always have the receipts witnessed, when practicable.

4. Copy, or have copied, all your bills in a book, so that you may, at a glance, see the cost of any article or branch of expense.--Without accurate accounts you must fall behind hand. What voyage would a ship make without observation or reckoning?— You are now embarked on the voyage of life; without a good look out you must be cust away.

5. Form no intimacies with your neighbors under a seven years' acquaintance-"qui vult dicipiatur." The rigid observance of my own maxims did not prevent ill blood be-tween some of my neighbors and myself.— My maxims preserved me from strife, and from loss by those. With the rest I was on the best of terms.

6. Economy: the adapting your supplies judiciously to their intended end. This is a gift of God. It cannot be taught, at least I have tried to learn it all my life, without success. My mother had it in per-

I shall send you some acorns of an oak from Turkey, and also a few English. Plant country; and with every book of the value of one them in beds, keep clean, and transplant at eighteen inches or two feet high. I hope that you will not forget broad-nuts, English walnuts, (and black walnuts too;) filberts, hazlenuts, and chestnuts, I will bring or send you. I saw trees of this sort, planted about a century ago, at Houghton Hall, by the great Sir R. Walpole, from two to three feet in diameter. This was in August, 1826. They afford a noble shade as well as valuable fruit.

Get Cobbett's American Gardener. It can be had at Pishey Thompson's in Washington. Spare no expense or labor for good enclo-sures, and a tight, warm house. The parsimony I preach up does not extend to the exclusion of comforts. I hope never to see a fire-place in your house without shovel and tongs and fender; nor with broken windows. When I was on a visit to poor B., he had eight or ten sponging visitors and their horses, and it was with difficulty that I could get a basin or towel; even the most necessary article in a bed chamber was missing. I do not mean the bed, for there was one, although most uncomfortable. No: furnish your rooms well, however plainly. It is a first expense for the whole of your life. Plate and china, and glass, you will have no occasion to buy.

I shall probably never see how you and my darling niece succeed as house-keepers .-Daily and every day I find that I am sinking. To be laid by the side of my honored parents at Old Matoax, is now the only wish that I have personally to myself. No tomb-stone. no monument for me. Let "spring with dewy fingers cold," dress the turf that shall cover my no longer feverish head or throbbing heart. If there be any memorial of me let it be a plain head-stone, with this inscription: "John Randolph of Roanoke, son of John Randolph of Roanoke, the elder, and Francis Bland, his wife, and stepson of Virginia, born June 2d, 1773, died ---_, 1831." Beyond this last period I feel that it is impossible, short of a miracle, for my existence to be prolonged. "Thy will be

I am now closely confined to my apartment. With faithful John's aid, I have all the comforts that I am now capable of enjoying; my life hangs upon his. I had liked to have omitted one special caution against going to the watering places in autumn in search of health. It is an idle, dissipated, and expensive practice. If you are to live in the lower country, you must accustom yourself to the climate, which I have no hesitation in saying is in every way more healthy than that of the upper country, short of the Alleghany. When I was a boy, agues and fevers were hardly known twen-ty miles west of the falls of the great rivers. The inhabitants of the lower country were always jeered by the trans-mountain people. especially on account of their sickly climate.

But now the valley is, perhaps, the sickliest in the State. Whoever heard of the breaking up of old William and Mary by an indigenous plague? In case you should go far enough west (to Montgomery or Wythe) to avoid autumnal diseases you must count upon dying the first time that circumstances oblige you to spend the season at home .--There never was complaint of sickness at Warner Hall until the last Warner introduced the rum fever. The notion of ill health has been a pretext to cover the love of gadding and gosipping; and for a winter climate, and spring especially, (not to mention roads,) there is no comparison.

Pray mention Mrs. V. Bibber's lowest price for her estate, and John Tabb's also if pracdien, my children. J. R., of Roanoke. To JOHN RANDOLPH BRYANT, ESQ. A LEXANDRIA CITY six per cent. STOCK, Registered and Coupon, for sale by dec 30—tf CORSE BROTHERS.

* * * * * * * * * N. B.-A WORD OF EXPLANATION those who have known us under the style of Evans & Co. The business located by us at No. 677 Broadway, New York City, is the eldest established house in the country, and is known world-wide as the original "EVANS & CO.'S GIFT BOOK-STORE." Many have taken the advantage of our popularity, to advertise under the same name, may be unacquainted with us, we would state that we have no connection with any other Gift Book House—and though many advertise under the name of Evans & Co., the firm constituted by D. W. EVANS and J. H. PRESTON, is the first and only concern rightfully using the name. But

D. W. EVANS & CO., and all persons wrongfully using the appellation to mislead the public, will be made to suffer the penalty of the law.

D. W. EVANS & CO., 677 Broadway, New York.

WE WOULD inform all in want of BROOMS, BUCKETS, and CEDAR WARE, that we are receiving as large a stock of such goods as is to be found in Broom and Wooden Ware Stores generally.
